EQUUS Film Festival Returns to Camden

By Marsha Hewitt
Editor
SC Market Bulletin

South Carolina has always been a premier state for horses, but now the rest of the world is taking notice. For the second year, the internationally acclaimed EQUUS Film Festival will return to Camden to feature the best horse-related films of 2016.

The event, brought by EQUUS Film Festival founder Lisa Diersen, will show domestic and international features at Camden's Little Theatre on Feb. 17-18. Other events include a Filmmaker Salon, Artist's Gallery Gallop, and a special block of activities for children.

Horse lovers are encouraged to immerse themselves in a variety of films, documentaries and shorts about horses. A panel discussion, moderated by photojournalist Diana DeRosa, will focus on current topics in the equine industry. Panelists include the equine marketing specialist from the SC Department of Agriculture, a local racing expert, a spokesman for Thoroughbred rescue, and the director of the Steeplechase Museum.

Filmmakers from all over the world submit their horse-related clips to the festival, and only the best of them are included on the tour. Ms. DeRosa will also lead discussions with visiting filmmakers about the process of making a horse-related movie.

The films will be shown at The Little Theatre, 506 East DeKalb Street, a charming vintage theatre with seating for 400 downstairs and 100 upstairs. With 45 equine-related films grouped in special interest blocks, horse lovers can easily select their favorite topics.

"The Best of Camden," three films representing the local horse industry, will be screened on Friday, Feb. 17 at 4 p.m. and Saturday, Feb. 18 at 6:30 p.m.

The True Story of Sunshine Numbers features the extraordinary Thoroughbred racehorse owned by Sue and George Sensor and trained by Arch Kingsley of Camden.

Minimambo: The Minimovie explores the world of Thoroughbred racing through the eyes of an innovative syndicate. The horse Minimambo is owned by a local female-only group called "Fast Women."

The EDGE: Bruce Anderson--Natural Humanship™ details equine consultant Bruce Anderson's work to change mindsets and build a foundation of mental tools for horses and people.

Julianne Neal, Bruce Anderson's partner, explained how the festival came to Camden. "Bruce's work is so unique, it's hard to explain," she said. "Instead of natural horsemanship, he calls it 'Natural Humanship.'" The couple had filmed a video for their web site, The Marley Project, which turned into a documentary. In 2015 they flew to New York for the EQUUS Film Festival, where they met Lisa Diersen.

"We jokingly told our filmmakers that we would like to submit a film for EQUUS, and they rushed to get the trailer ready. We were amazed when it was accepted only weeks before the 2015 event," Ms. Neal said. "We were even more amazed when the actual documentary won the Environmental Awareness Award in 2016!"

This year, the Marley Project hosts the festival with support from the City of Camden and the Kershaw County Tourism Partnership. All the activities are located within a two-block area downtown.

Going Wild for Certified SC

For the 35th year, 40,000 visitors will descend on Charleston's Southeastern Wildlife Exposition this weekend for the finest in hunting, art and, my personal favorite, food. Year after year, SEWE celebrates the great outdoors, and once again we invite you to join us to get a little "wild in the kitchen" in the Certified SC Grown tent located in Marion Square.

SEWE features more than 500 artists and exhibitors from around the globe who come to showcase their crafts. The Certified SC Grown tent will have samples from more than 30 Certified SC specialty foods vendors. Choose from BBQ sauces, jams and jellies, olive oils, and specialty spices, all packed with local flavor.

The Wild in the Kitchen cooking stage, now in its eighth year, will have cooking demonstrations from Fresh on the Menu chefs. Hear from chefs whose restaurants have helped put South Carolina on the culinary map with creative recipes, authentic cuisine and the art of using South Carolina's freshest ingredients to make mouthwatering menus. This year's demos will include dishes like squab with grits and turnip greens, lump blue crab over Anson Mills grits cakes, and a classic jambalaya. This is a can't-miss event if you want some of the area's top chef's secrets to mixing in Certified SC grown products. You'll find a full schedule of cooking demos included in this edition of the Bulletin.

Chipotle Pork and Pepper Stew

Prep Time: 20 minutes

Cook Time: 40 minutes

Cook to 145° F

Rest for 10 minutes

- 1 1/2 pounds New York (top loin) pork roast, or boneless pork loin chops, trimmed, cut into 3/4-inch dice
- 1 1/2 tablespoons Canola oil, or other neutral-flavored oil
- 2 to 4 canned Chipotle chile in Adobo sauce, minced*
- 1 teaspoon salt, or more to taste
- 2 bell peppers, ideally 2 different colors, sliced
- 1 large red onion, or white onion, sliced
- 2 14- to 15-ounce can diced fire-roasted tomatoes
- 1 15-ounce can black beans, or pinto beans or kidney beans
- 2 cups corn kernels, freshly sliced off the cob, canned (drained), or frozen
- 2 tablespoons fresh oregano, chopped

In a large saucepan or small stockpot over medium-high heat, warm the oil. Add the pork, chipotles, and salt and cook, stirring occasionally, until no longer pink on the outside, about 4 minutes. Add the peppers and onion and cook, stirring occasionally, until the peppers and onions are starting to soften, about 4 minutes. Add the tomatoes (with their juices) and 1 cup of water, scraping up any browned bits on the bottom of the pot. Bring to a boil, reduce to a simmer, and cook, stirring occasionally, until the pork, peppers, and onion are tender, about 15 minutes.

Stir in the beans (with their juices) and corn and cook, stirring occasionally, until heated through, 5 to 8 minutes. Add the oregano and additional salt to taste.

Serves 8

*You can find canned chipotle peppers in adobo sauce in the ethnic or Latin section of most major supermarkets.

And the good news is, you can cook like a Fresh on the Menu chef at home! Just pick up a copy of our "Wild in the Kitchen" Cookbook. The colorful pages are filled with recipes from the 2017 SEWE chefs along with information about how to purchase your favorite specialty foods. Don't forget to contact Certified SC farmers for fresh, local products to enjoy year round.

In addition to the restaurants featured in the cooking demos, Charleston is home to dozens of Fresh on the Menu options with something sure to please even the most discerning palates. While you're visiting, Use the Fresh on the Menu app to help you locate a restaurant to suite your tastes while in Charleston and when you head back home.

Expos like SEWE afford us opportunities to reach broad audiences and share the importance of agriculture to South Carolina's economy. I like to remind folks that purchasing just $5 worth of food each week from a South Carolina farmer can lead to over $1 billion in economic impact. Making small changes in food buying habits means big returns for the Palmetto State.

There's really something for everyone at SEWE, even if hunting isn't your thing. I hope you'll join us this year at the Southeastern Wildlife Exposition as we celebrate the wealth of natural resources found right here in South Carolina.

- Third place - $300

"Pork Ribs" winning trophies and cash awards of $1,900

- First place - $1,000
- Second place - $600
- Third place - $300

Cookers competing in Butts & Ribs are eligible to be awarded as

- Grand Champion $600
- Reserve Champion $300

"People's Choice" wins a trophy.

All applications and entry fees are due March 10. For more information or to register as a cook team, visit agriculture.sc.gov or contact Elizabeth Shuler Wood at 803-917-4950 or ewood@scda.sc.gov.

Residents Can Dispose of Unwanted Pesticides

The S.C. Department of Agriculture will be collecting unusable or unwanted pesticides in two locations this month.

The collection program is open at no charge to all pesticide applicators in the state, as well as homeowners. SCDA staff will be on site to monitor pesticide collection and disposal.

Herbicides, insecticides, nematocides, fungicides and similar products used in agricultural production or around the home will be accepted. The quantity is limited to 2,500 pounds of solid and 300 gallons of liquid. Rinsate will not be accepted.

Fertilizer will not be accepted unless it is combined or co-packed with a pesticide such as weed and feed. No compressed gas cylinders or empty pesticide containers will be collected.

Collection Dates and Locations:

Feb. 21 – Laurens County
Laurens Livestock
2500 Highway 49
Laurens
9 a.m. – 3 p.m.

Feb. 22 – Chester County
Carolina Eastern
534 Swift Street
Chester
9 a.m. – 3 p.m.

For more information contact SCDA's John Stokes at 803-737-9696 or jstokes@scda.sc.gov, or Bobby Owens with ECOFLO, Inc., the company handling the disposal, at 336-617-2736 or bowens@ecoflo.com.

Assistant Commissioner to Talk About Hemp

A special guest from the SC Department of Agriculture will speak at the quarterly meeting of the S.C. Agricultural Council on Thursday, March 16. Clint Leach, the Assistant Commissioner for External Affairs & Economic Development, will talk about pending state legislation to allow hemp to be grown commercially in South Carolina. He will address the potential economic impact of this crop for local farmers.

Registration for the meeting begins at 11 a.m., followed by lunch at 11:30. The speaker begins promptly at noon. The cost, which includes a catered lunch, is $10 in advance and $15 at the door. Early registration ends March 10.

The meeting takes place at the S.C. Farm Bureau Office in Cayce. The public is welcome to attend.

For more information or to preregister contact Steve Slice at 803-777-2875 or scagriculturalcouncil@gmail.com.

EQUUS Film Festival Returns

"The films are divided into blocks of similar interest, such as mules and donkeys, Camden films, racing, and films for children," Ms. Neal explained. Saturday is children's day, with a block of free kids' films from 10 a.m. until noon. The Marley Project Literary Roundup will showcase children's books with readings by local celebrities. Enthusiasts can get their books signed Books on Broad and the celebrity readings will take place at the Kershaw County Public Library.

A variety of artwork will be on display at the Filmmaker Salon located at 1029 Broad Street, Wayne Williams will broadcast interviews for "Speaking of Horses," and the public is encouraged to meet festival founder Dierson and the visiting group of filmmakers, authors and artists.

At the Rutledge Street Park, the public can meet Marley, the horse that Bruce uses in his work. At the Gallery Gallop many of the local shops will be open until 7:30 p.m. Saturday night. All the venues are within a 5-minute walk.

To purchase tickets or for more information during the event, visit the Marley Project Headquarters at 1050 Broad Street.
